Captured By Convicts

[Copyright, 1902, by H. L. Harold.]

We had discharged our cargo at Georgetown from the brig Albatross and were ready to start on our return voyage to Liverpool when the captain was notified that ten French convicts from the penal settlement of Cayenne had escaped to sea in a yawl.

Three days later and 120 miles to the south our lookout sighted the craft and her convict crew. In a quarter of an hour the yawl lay off our port bow within speaking distance.

"Hello, captain! Our ship went down off here (pointing to the east) yesterday afternoon. We have neither food nor drink, and we ask you, in the name of humanity, to supply us."

"I have nothing to spare, and I warn you to keep off!" shouted the captain in answer to the request.

We had seen no arms among them and had supposed them to be without weapons of any sort. To our great surprise, five muskets, taken from the guard when they escaped, were suddenly lifted into view, while four of our dropped into the water, and the yawl made for our bows. There was a fierce yell from every convict, and those with muskets opened fire. Captain Rothsay was killed and the second mate wounded even before they had hooked on.

We scalded them with boiling water and fought them with whatever we could lay hold of, but within five minutes the brig was captured. We had a foremost hand killed in the fight on deck, and none of us escaped injury. As an offset we killed two of the convicts while they were trying to board.

As chief officer I was asked about our cargo and destination, and on the other hand the leader informed me that they were sorry to interrupt our voyage, but intended to use the brig to make good their escape.

The first thing was to get rid of the dead bodies. They allowed us to sew them in canvas before they went overboard, and then our wounded men were made comfortable. After the burial the leader said to us:

"We mean you no harm. We are desperate men and intend to make our escape. After we have been landed in some safe place you may sail away with your brig. If you try to deceive us, we will show you no mercy."

I was further informed that I must act as captain and navigate the brig, and I was allowed to choose a mate from among my men. After that a council was held among the eight of us as to what place should be steered for. I brought them the charts from the cabin, and after a long debate it was decided to run for the Amazon river.

From the very first I had hoped that we might retake the brig, but the convicts would only trust us so far. The watches were so divided by order of Moran that our men were separated, and two of the convicts were kept under arms to act as sentries. Moran and the second mate had quarters aft with me, while all the others berthed forward. All of us were under surveillance, and no two of us were ever left alone together. While none of them could take the wheel, they kept constant watch on the compass.

The winds were light and variable, and it was the sixth day after our capture before we drew in with the coast. Moran's orders were to avoid Para by entering the north mouth, and when we were fairly in the river he told me their plans. I was to take them in the brig up as far as the mouth of the Xingu river, and they then would pull up the stream in the yawl and make for the diamond district. We were not above thirty miles up the river when we were obliged to come to anchor for want of a breeze. About the time we anchored the demeanor of the convicts seemed to change for the worse. It appeared as if three or four of them were anxious to pick a quarrel with our men. That evening the second mate found opportunity to say to me:

"Depend upon it, Mr. Leoux, they never meant to stand by their bargain. I shouldn't be surprised if they were planning to cut our throats and scuttle the brig."

I strongly suspected them of some evil intention, but nothing came of it that night. Next morning we had wind and tide in our favor, and at noon, when we anchored again, we had made twenty-five miles. Right away after dinner the yawl was lowered and Moran began to outfit her. Whatever they thought could be made useful was placed in the boat, and they were rummaging about the whole afternoon. At about 6 o'clock Moran ordered all of the old crew of the brig into the cabin. Every man of us at once realized that the climax was at hand, and, acting in concert, we made a sudden and furious attack. We got possession of two of the muskets and were making a good fight of it, though bound to be beaten in the end, when a Brazilian gunboat, which was on her way up the river, appeared alongside of us and had grappled on before some of us saw her. Her presence put an end to the fight, and we had two men wounded, while we had killed one convict and wounded a second.

Our captors were neatly trapped, but they no longer realized it than they did when we had the real crew of the vessel and denounced us as convicts. They were so earnest and emphatic in their declarations that the commander of the gunboat was almost convinced. I destroyed their case, however, when I asked them for the captain's name, or port of hall, the names of the different ropes and sails, etc. They were ironed and taken aboard the gunboat to be conveyed to Cayenne, while the brig was towed down to Para to be put through the legal forms necessary in such cases.

LAKE COMO.

Among the recent arrivals at the Avenue House are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Gates, Mrs. Fish and two children and Mr. A. B. Williams, all of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. E. S. Leon of Cleveland, Ohio, is at All View Cottage for the winter.

Mr. Hart has some very fine cows in his dairy and he supplies some people with fresh milk every morning.

Miss Carrie Warner Carter has arrived for the winter and has opened her pleasant cottage on Central avenue. Mr. Warner who accompanies his daughter, is shaking hands with his numerous friends and seems much improved in health. He seems very greatly pleased to be again in Como.

Mr. W. L. Gable and family expect to leave Como today for their future home in Leesburg and Como people are greatly regretting their departure. They will be greatly missed in a social way for they have lived here for a long time of years and during all that time no social gathering seemed complete without them. The best wishes of the whole community follow them.

Mr. D. E. Dusenberry has just finished giving All View Cottage a new coat of paint and with Mrs. D's assistance the house is in fine shape to entertain the large number of guests they are expecting.

Rev. J. K. Ford, pastor of the M. E. church has returned from Christ's Hospital, Cincinnati, where he has been under surgical treatment for rupture. Mr. Ford says his experience has not been in the nature of a picnic; that he lay strapped in one position for four weeks. He is feeling quite weak still and his physician orders him to keep quiet for the next 30 days, so people in his circuit must not expect too much of him during this period of convalescence.

A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., says: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." For sale by Ackerman & Stewart, druggists.

Swelling the Unsuccessful Rank.

A great many men have been left behind because of their listlessness, their easy going ways. They were too slow. Opportunities would not wait for them. They would have taken advantage of them, would have succeeded, if the chance had not been so fast. If the opportunities had tarried awhile, had given them a chance to look them over and consult their friends or if they had only come back, these gentle people would now be on the heights instead of looking wistfully up from the foot of the mountain. But alas, opportunities never return, and he who is not ready to seize them as they sit onward will have only regrets for his inaction.

METHODIST APPOINTMENTS.

Rev. Dr. R. L. Honiker Changes Places with Rev. N. H. Williams, of Palmetto.

The Florida Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, concluded its annual session at Quincy on Tuesday when the annual shake-up of ministers was announced by Bishop Smith.

There has been more than the ordinary amount of pastoral changes this year, as will appear from a perusal of the subjoined list of appointments.

Rev. Dr. R. L. Honiker, for the past four years pastor of St. James church in this city, has been appointed to the pastorate of the church at Palmetto, directly opposite Bradenton on the Manatee river. Palmetto is a town of about 800 inhabitants with a populous and progressive outlying district. Orange growing and truck gardening is the principal occupation of the people. Dr. Honiker, like a loyal Methodist, expresses himself as well pleased with his appointment.

Rev. N. H. Williams who comes to St. James church, is said to be one of the most eloquent men in the conference. He is of rather frail build, about 35 years of age, and has a wife and two children. He is a graduate of Emory College, Oxford, Ga. Owing to illness of Mrs. Williams he does not expect to move here under three weeks, during which time the pulpit will be supplied by Dr. Honiker, by special arrangement of the bishop.
